Hearst Declares American People Have Grown Tired of 'Roosevelt Law'

COUNTRY WANTS NO THIRD TERM HE, SAYS

Editor Says Nation Fears More Panic Making Sensationalism.

NOT CERTAIN HUNTER COULD BE RE-ELECTED

Avers Taft Failed to Accomplish Regulations of the Country's Railroads.

From the London Chronicle.

LONDON, June 12.—One of the most remarkable of all living Americans—some so far as to say the most remarkable of all living Americans—Mr. Hearst, who is now in London, has declared that the American people are tired of the "Roosevelt Law" and that they do not want a third term of Mr. Roosevelt. MILIONS OF READERS Thus, like a colossal host, the American people are tired of the "Roosevelt Law" and that they do not want a third term of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Hearst, who is now in London, has declared that the American people are tired of the "Roosevelt Law" and that they do not want a third term of Mr. Roosevelt.

BEGINNING WRONG It is very interesting to read the account of the "Roosevelt Law" and that they do not want a third term of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Hearst, who is now in London, has declared that the American people are tired of the "Roosevelt Law" and that they do not want a third term of Mr. Roosevelt.

CURING CATARRH

Accept Our Advice and Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, and lungs. It is caused by a germ which enters the system through the nose or throat. The germ multiplies and causes inflammation. The inflammation causes the mucous membrane to become thick and swollen. This causes the nose to run and the throat to become sore. The disease is very common and is often neglected. It is important to treat it early, as it can lead to more serious complications if left untreated.

Hearst Predicts an End To Free Trade of Nation

"There will be no free trade, only a modified protection. Americans generally are inclined to believe that protection does protect, or rather that it stimulates the growth of new manufacturers. Take, for instance, motor cars. We all bought them at first from France. But a 40 per cent import duty encourages our manufacturers to build cars, and now we no longer go to France."

"Mr. Taft is blamed for not having insisted upon a more radical revision. But he stood for the principle that it is better to revise your tariff in times of prosperity than when you are just recovering from a panic."

"I pointed out that he was being assailed by a very noisy section of the Republicans, whose only quarrel with Taft is that he is not Roosevelt. Taft is trying to do what Roosevelt failed to accomplish in the regulation of railroads. Roosevelt law has admittedly broken down. Yet Taft's effort to make it effective is denounced as if it were treason to his predecessor."

"Will Taft be re-elected? That depends. If the nomination were to take place today he would not. But much may happen in two years."

"There will certainly be a strong attempt made to nominate Roosevelt, but it is by no means certain that even if nominated he would be elected."

"He is very popular, but there is strong prejudice against giving any man a third term in the Presidency. It may be irrational and it is true that Roosevelt was not twice elected to the Presidency, but, after all, a third term is a third term, and Americans are prejudiced against a third term. That is the objection."

"I do not think a more radical revision of the tariff is necessary. The tariff is a very important part of our national policy. It is a tool which we must use wisely. We must not let it become a mere protection for the sake of protection. We must use it to stimulate the growth of our industries and to protect our national interests."

CHARLTON'S COAT FOUND IN LAKE

Theory That Man Met Fate of Wife Strengthened by Discovery.

ory of many that a double murder was committed. This is the view of Charles V. Caughey, the American consul at Milan who believes Charlton met the same fate as did his wife. Earlier evidence that both of the Americans were killed presumes that their valuables were found in the blood-spattered bed in the villa, which they occupied.

DRAQ LAKE COME

On the supposition that Lake Como contains the body of Charlton, a thorough search of its bottom and shores was begun today. The fact that the fishermen had drawn the trunk with its greasy contents to the surface. It was not long before the searchers were rewarded by the finding of the portion of a man's coat. This was exhibited among the fisher folks and others in the vicinity who had seen the Charltons and some of these declared at once that it was part of a suit which the young American had worn.

For her support of the double murder theory, developed as the day progressed, I had been known that he police were in possession of several clues leading to the discovery of the body of the man who had been murdered. They have however been decidedly reticent in regard to their discovery.

TWO STONES TAKEN

It is after noon today when the investigators had determined that the stone with which the trunk was weighted had been taken from the wall of a rock on the shore. The stone had been removed from a spot in the wall opposite the point at which the trunk was submerged.

Following up this clue, the police discovered that another stone, equally similar in size, had been recently dug out of the wall. This is held to be significant.

The second stone has not been located and the police will not be surprised if they find that it was used to drag the body of the man who was murdered. The stone was found in the wall of a rock on the shore.

ALCOHOL VICTIM

The far reaching investigation instituted by the police in Milan, Italy, to find the bodies of the missing Americans, has been intensified by the discovery of a man who was found dead in a lake. The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake.

The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake. The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake. The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake.

TRIES TO FIND ALBI

The Russian Spoloff was a man under arrest charged with complicity in the murder of the Americans. He was found in a lake near the shore of the lake. The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake.

The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake. The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake. The man was found in a lake near the shore of the lake.

CHARLTON ALIVE?

The police on the other hand are working on the theory that Charlton is alive. They think the body of the man who was found in the lake is the body of Charlton. They think the body of the man who was found in the lake is the body of Charlton.

The police on the other hand are working on the theory that Charlton is alive. They think the body of the man who was found in the lake is the body of Charlton. They think the body of the man who was found in the lake is the body of Charlton.

JEALOUSY OF CAS LE

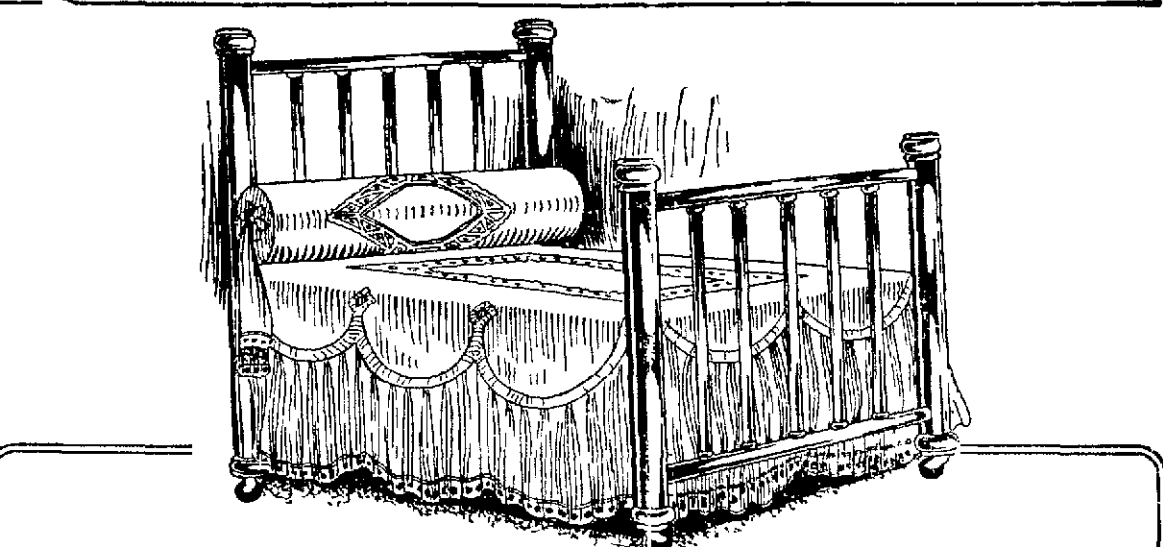

It seems certain that the police are working on the theory that Charlton is alive. They think the body of the man who was found in the lake is the body of Charlton. They think the body of the man who was found in the lake is the body of Charlton.

Declares That the Organization Wants Frank Otis to Come to Them Handcuffed

Aameda, Cal. June 12, 1910.

Editor Tribune: The announcement by John Ralph Wilson of his candidacy for the state Senate will if persisted in produce two results which are unforeseen by Mr. Wilson. Whether they are unforeseen by those who are urging his candidacy, I am not sure.

It is open history that the Lincoln Roosevelt organization has been for weeks endeavoring most strenuously to get Frank Otis to publicly announce his adherence to their political program. "PROSECUTION" AND "DEFENSE" FILE LONG BRIEFS WITH THE INQUIRY BOARD

Vetrees, Pepper and Brandeis Advance Arguments in Ballinger Hearing; Counsel Declares Secretary Not Guilty of Charges Preferred Against Him

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Files were filed by the attorneys for the "prosecution" and "defense" with the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee today.

The committee did not meet today, but will assemble Saturday to prepare for its deliberations.

Attorney Brandeis, counsel for former Secretary of the Interior, and Attorney Pepper, counsel for former Secretary Pinchot, filed their briefs with the committee today.

The evidence adduced during the investigation has shown that Secretary Ballinger is unfit to administer the affairs of the public domain because of an obvious leaning toward a policy of "distribution" instead of "conservation" of the people's lands.

They condemn his attitude toward the champions of conservation and charge him with causing embarrassment to the President and loss to the people.

Equally insistent that Mr. Ballinger should be removed from office because he did not approve of the so-called "Garfield policies."

Vetrees attempts to show by the evidence that there has been a conspiracy to secure Ballinger's removal from office by the "prosecution" and "defense" attorneys.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Secretary Ballinger's final word of defense was presented today in the form of a brief prepared by his attorney, John J. Vetrees.

After reading an exhaustive review of the evidence before the committee, Mr. Vetrees concludes:

"When we consider how baseless and groundless this accusation against Mr. Ballinger is, and the vast number of those who have urged it on, we recall the language of Fawcett, a jurymen of the days of the Reign of Terror in France. Referring to one who served with him, Fawcett says: 'My belief is that the man is a villain, but nothing. Sometimes he wants to save counter-revolutionary plots. He requires proofs, as in the ordinary trials of the old regime. We sometimes have very sharp discussions.'"

Mr. Vetrees insists that neither the official nor professional acts of his client are open to criticism and declares that none of the accusations made against him have been sustained by presentation of facts.

He says the accusations are the results of a conspiracy against him, and quotes freely from the evidence before the committee in an attempt to show that the "prosecution" is a conspiracy to secure his removal from office.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—To substantiate the claim that Secretary of the Interior Richard I. Ballinger has shown "hostility to the people's interests" and his cooperation with the private special interests are attacking the people's property in violation of the public trust, the "prosecution" attorneys, Louis S. Brandeis, George Hughes and Joseph P. Cotton Jr., in a voluminous brief today filed with the inquiry board, have set forth a series of charges against the Secretary.

The brief, which is the longest yet filed in the inquiry board, is divided into seven chapters.

In the introductory chapter, the brief discusses what the attorneys call "Ballinger's attitude toward the public domain." It asks the question, "Is Ballinger a man, single minded, enlightened and courageous, as seriously devoted to the interests of the common people, so vigilant and resolute in the defense of the public domain, that he can be entrusted with the carrying forward of the broad policy of conservation of our national resources?"

In answer, the brief declares that the simple tests, as submitted, have been conclusively established, and if only this is true, the Department of the Interior should be under other guidance.

The brief then discusses the "Garfield policies" and the "conservation" policy, and the "distribution" policy.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors this morning, all the members were present.

The report of the coroner for May, which showed that 45 inquests had been held, was filed.

Applications for saloon licenses were received as follows and referred to the license committee: Antonio Davilla, Alvarado; M. E. Rose, Ashtland; Andrew Johnson, Russell's Station.

The application of John Bowman for a saloon license at 21st and Levee streets, Alvarado, which was laid over several weeks ago, because the applicant had no money to pay for the license, was taken up today.

Deputy Clerk Wilson said that Bowman had applied for the license in the name of an old place, was read.

On motion of Supervisor Kelly, the matter was ordered to be present today.

AVIATOR HAMILTON SMASHES AIR RECORDS IN HIS NEW YORK TO PHILADELPHIA FLIGHT

FLIES TO THE QUAKER CITY IN HOUR AND 13 MINUTES; THEN MAKES RETURN TRIP

Great Crowd Welcomes Him on Arrival and After Short Rest He Ascends Again and Returns to Starting Point

Pennsylvania Junction and it was surrounded by 500 police to keep back the crowd. All the mills in the neighborhood were shut down and that section of the city took a holiday.

The crowd began gathering at 6 a. m. and waited for news of Hamilton's start. Finally the signal flags erected on a tall pole told of Hamilton's leaving Governor's Island and other signals arranged by the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger, under whose auspices Hamilton made the journey, kept the crowd informed of the aviator's progress.

Aviator Comes Into Sight

A report came that Hamilton had crossed into Pennsylvania and it was not long before a shout went up from the western edge of the crowd that Hamilton was in sight. There he was, high in the air, directly over the special train. A moment later he was in plain view of all and then a tremendous cheer went up.

Flying steadily Hamilton rapidly approached and when he was within a few yards of the field he swerved rapidly to the right and crossed the field.

The aviator circled the field several times and then swooped down. He landed easily and before he could get out of his machine the crowd broke through the police lines and rushed at Hamilton. The aviator was, however, quickly surrounded by a cordon of police.

Governor Stuart welcomed Hamilton, who said it was the best trip he had ever made.

Had Machine in Perfect Control

"I had the machine in perfect control all the way," said Hamilton, "and could have stayed up much longer. The only drawback to the journey was the dampness and the chill. Most of the trip was misty and at times I could not see the train and seldom saw the people at the stations."

For a long time after he alighted Hamilton could pay no attention to his biplane, so enthusiastic was the reception he received. The police had all they could do to keep the crowd from crushing his machine. Finally he was able to turn his attention to it and he announced, after an inspection, that he would attempt to return to New York within an hour, the weather conditions being, in his opinion, ideal for flying. The speed of the flight was at an average of about forty-six miles an hour.

Had Luncheon Before Returning

Hamilton started on his return at 11:30 a. m. The crowd cheered him until he was out of sight.

After taking his biplane apart on his arrival here the aviator was brought into the city for luncheon at a hotel and immediately returned to the field where he superintended the filling of the gasoline tanks. After spending a little time in tuning up his engine he said he was ready for the start. Putting on his rubber coat, he got into the seat of his machine and gave instructions to start him.

Four men gently pushed the machine down the field about seventy feet and then it began to rise. The biplane went up at a sharp angle to about 200 feet. Hamilton then adjusted the machine, turned its course east and started off. He moved rapidly and was soon out of sight. The special train was a little late in getting away.

Hamilton Gets Away On Philadelphia Trip, Carrying Messages

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles K. Hamilton soared away from Governor's Island early today, set upon an expedition to make an aerial flight of almost 200 miles from New York to Philadelphia and return.

The young aviator, absolutely unknown in the field of aviation a year ago, was delayed at the start by the smashing of a propeller blade, but a new propeller was quickly fitted to the machine and a second and final start was made at 7:55 o'clock.

Hamilton, puffing out to these spectators by a puffing of inflated rubber automobile tires under his leather jacket, made one wide preliminary circle over the army reservation before setting out for his objective point. He rose to an altitude of 225 feet and headed off toward the Jersey shore, the level and darker craft trailing him as they proceeded as he flew over the water a mile or two from the shore.

The aviator carried letters from Governor Hughes and Mayor Gaynor which he intends to deliver to Governor Stuart and Mayor Reymann in Philadelphia and a special message from the New York Times to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The flight was undertaken under the auspices of the Times and the Ledger.

The two papers contributed a purse which was to vary in value, according to what Hamilton was able to achieve. The total amount has not been made public. Hamilton carried several hundred small, oval flat tin-lined cases, known as "space bags," which he intended to drop at designated places in his flight as an illustration of the possibilities of the aeroplane in war.

For the past two months the council has been considering the matter of the application of the franchise of the company and three times the power company has withdrawn its application for revision.

The council at first considered the proposal of taking over the company's properties at the expiration of the franchise without paying for it, under the State law. But they did not want to place the burden on the clients of the company, who, in that event, would make a higher rate for the power.

by this time, it is believed, he has been shifted into the interior of the state.

Shortly after noon Mrs. Sadie Manchester, the mother of the boy, appeared before Police Judge Deary and secured a warrant charging abandonment of wife and neglect of minor child. This was only done so as to furnish a warrant for the arrest of the father, as Mrs. Manchester admitted to having voluntarily left the home of the couple near Laytonville, Mendocino county.

Mrs. Manchester is now willing to do almost anything to regain possession of the child and will consent to return to live with the husband, whose treatment of her, she avers, was responsible for her taking refuge with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hodson, in this city.

Referring to the condition at her Mendocino home, the wife and mother said:

TRAP DOORS EVERYWHERE

"He had a trap door in the floor of every room in the ranch house. He would not have a house with a second story. The building was spread out, only one story, and underneath it he had cellars and passages. He used to snoop around at night in these underground places, from which he would push open a trap door here and there and listen to what was being said and done."

Yesterday the husband called at the Hodson home and took little Lloyd into a room to play with him. The mother thought nothing of the occurrence until a little playmate of the youngster, who lives next door, ran in to say that the boy had just been taken in a taxicab. Mrs. Manchester obtained another machine, but made the mistake of going to the ferry instead of Third and Townsend streets, and so missed him.

One-day Licenses Barred Near Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—Charles Stewart, secretary of the police commission, has warned the license department against issuing any one-day licenses, permits which might be used in the vicinity of Fifth and Market streets for Fourth of July, the day on which the big fight is scheduled.

It is the custom of the commission to issue a license to sell liquor for one day, for $10, without investigation. The possibility of obtaining such licenses to operate saloons in tents in the vicinity of the combat has led to this advance step by the police commission. There will be no such licenses issued, and the saloons fortunate enough to be now in the vicinity are counting on a rushing business.

SPRECKELS WILL CASE IS NEARING THE END

Respondents Maintain Money

Inheritance.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Arguing that Claus Spreckels Sr. gave the $22,000,000 in bonds and securities to John D. and Adolph Spreckels, his sons, and did not in any sense of the word advance this enormous wealth on the strength of the heritage which would some day be theirs, Attorney Peter T. Dunne presented his case before Probate Judge Coffey this morning.

ASSERTS IT WAS A GIFT

The theory of advancement was put forward by the plaintiff, and it was argued that the fact that the money given to the brothers was in lieu of their share of the property was corroborated by the clause in the will cutting them off from further participation in the estate. Attorney Dunne, in taking up the matter, asserted that it was a gift absolutely and positively, and that it could not have been an advancement without having been so stipulated in writing.

He declared that the clause in the will had nothing to do with the doctrine of advancement which would only apply where there was no will at all, and that the deduction in the testament was not a part of the will's gesture.

The argument was entirely along technical lines, and considerable reference was made to various authorities bearing upon the subject.

Release Von Gung On Long Probation

of the girls met their death in slow torture.

Flames crept slowly upon them as they lay helpless and as a rescue party was fighting to penetrate the building. The victims were carried downward through the building by a huge water tank which plunged from roof to cellar. Almost instantly there was an explosion of gas from severed pipes, which hung about the sides of the immense jagged hole.

SCORES NEAR DEATH

Flames fanned by a stiff wind were soon sweeping the upper floors of the building. Scores of persons in the editorial and other departments had to fight for their lives through smoke and wreckage.

The fire department could make little impression on the increasing flames. Cries of the buried victims rose over the shouts of the firemen and the crowd. Although the flames were slowly increasing it appeared for a time as if some of the doors had been hurried to the bareness might be rescued.

RESCUERS FORCED BACK

The police headed a volunteer party, which, protected by a water curtain, formed by streams from fire hose, tried to enter the building. With the opening of the doors the groans and cries of those pined in the ruins became more distinct. But just then a wall of flame suddenly arose.

Gradually the cries died out. All attempts at rescue soon had to be abandoned.

One Way of Getting Business.

A cry comes up from Los Angeles that the public service corporations are invoking the initiative and referendum to carry out their designs. It is not surprising if they are. Neither can any one legitimately complain if they do employ it. The initiative and referendum is a utility of government that can be invoked by anybody, and corporations are not prone to neglect opportunities. The application of the initiative and referendum is not limited to any special class or purpose.

An instance of how the initiative and referendum can be invoked to serve purely personal ends was just been furnished in Berkeley. The enterprising agent for a patent fender induced several hundred citizens to sign a petition asking the City Council to call a special election to compel the traction company to equip all street cars with his device. As a cover for this method of forcing the company to buy his device he worked up a popular agitation in behalf of better protection from street car accidents. That such protection is needed cannot be denied, but the necessity for it is no proof that the fender he has for sale provides the necessary protection or is even the best device that can be had. Nor is the average man competent to pass upon the merits of devices of this character. However, this plausible promoter persuaded a large number of respectable and well-meaning citizens to assist him in invoking the initiative and referendum to force his fender on the street cars.

His fender may be a good one, or it may be worthless. We are not prepared to say anything more in regard to it than that the method he adopted to sell his device is discreditable—an abuse of popular credulity and the agencies of government. But the charter of Berkeley allows such things to be done, and the fender incident illustrates how sentiments which do honor to mankind can be played upon to serve purely mercenary purposes.

That the street cars should be equipped with some device that will reduce the danger of death or maiming in case of pedestrians being struck admits of no debate. But there is no use in equipping cars with devices which do not protect. If they do not afford protection they are worse than useless, and it is wrong to force the traction company to use them. It requires both technical knowledge and practical tests to determine the merits of the different devices in the market.

Furthermore, the cities of Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda should agree upon the kind of a guard or fender the traction company should use. The same cars run through all three towns, and it would be the acme of absurdity for Berkeley to prescribe one device, Oakland another and Alameda a third. To do so would compel fenders to be changed on every run. That fact alone shows how the attempted abuse of the initiative and referendum in Berkeley would work, provided it were successful.

If the Lincoln-Roosevelt League organs would stick to the truth they would be a remarkably still lot.

Another batch of the insurance companies that welched after the great fire in San Francisco have been ordered to pay up by a jury in the United States Circuit Court. The welching companies are now realizing that honesty is the best policy. In addition to being compelled to pay the losses incurred on their policies they are being blacklisted by business men all over the coast, who have no use for insurance that does not insure. While a large majority of the companies rated as standard squarled adjusted their losses and paid up promptly, a minority resorted to all sorts of subterfuges and legal technicalities to evade their obligations. Loss of confidence in all parts of the world is the penalty these companies are now paying for bad faith and unjust dealing. The effect will be beneficial, however, in more respects than one. Hereafter insurers will look more carefully into the record and financial stability of the companies in which they insure and underwriters will criticize the risks they assume more critically and more scrupulously live up to the terms of their contracts. The gain for security and commercial honor will be decided.

Colonel Bryan has nominated Champ Clark for President, but Champ has not played back a return compliment. Evidently he is not responding to the gentle suggestion that Bryan is the logical candidate for 1912.

As finally passed by the House, the Postal Savings Bank bill is shorn of some of its most objectionable features, but we are still doubtful whether it will really serve any useful purpose. It will certainly not meet the expectations of its advocates. In its present shape the bill limits the amount of single deposits to $500. No more than $100 nor less than ten cents can be deposited at a single time. Two per cent is allowed on deposits, and depositors are given the option of investing their savings in United States bonds drawing 2 1/2 per cent interest. Under these conditions postal banks cannot become dangerous competitors of the regular savings banks and will not congest the money of the country to any extent. In the first place, the rate of interest is too low to attract the majority of depositors, and the small maximum of individual deposits will prevent postal banks from being used as a depository for money withdrawn from circulation and held for security or speculative advantage. The bill has yet to run the gauntlet of the Senate, however, and may be amended or defeated. The fact that it cannot affect money currents to any appreciable extent renders it incapable of doing any great amount of harm or good.

Better protection should be provided for the big policeman stationed at Fourteenth street and Broadway. When he gets absorbed in conversation, as he frequently does, he is in danger of being run down by some reckless motorist. It would be a great pity to lose him.

The citizens of Guthrie, Oklahoma, have found a new use for the writ of injunction. The legislature at the last session submitted the selection of a permanent State capital to a vote of the electors. By an overwhelming majority Oklahoma City, which is by far the largest and most enterprising city in the State, was chosen. The citizens of Guthrie, which has hitherto been the seat of government, immediately applied to the courts for a writ to restrain the Governor and other officials from moving the State offices to Oklahoma City. In defiance of this proceeding Governor Haskell transferred administrative headquarters to the new capital, taking the ground that a vote of the people is self-operating and that a popular mandate expressed in accordance with a constitutional enactment of the Legislature cannot be stayed by judicial action. The Governor is probably right. Anyway the inhabitants are foolish in trying to defeat by legal technicalities the manifest desire of the great majority of the inhabitants of the State. Less than a third of the electors who expressed themselves at the polls designated Guthrie as their choice. To retain the capital at Guthrie under the circumstances is both impossible and unfair.

All the Democratic party in California needs is leadership and votes. If these trifles were supplied it might become formidable.

As to Marriage of the Unfit

There is something to be said in support of the proposition, advanced by Bishop McVicar, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Rhode Island, that it would be advantageous to the community to legislate against the marriage of the physically or mentally unfit. It is not a new idea by any means, but it is one which has not often been advanced by a man of Bishop McVicar's standing and character, and perhaps it is deserving of a more serious and respectful consideration than it has yet received.

It is, of course, open to objections which suggest themselves at once. Of these, the most obvious, if not the most important, is that marriage is not essential to the production of progeny, and that persons excluded from the marriage state would continue to increase the population under conditions subversive of morality. That is possible, but perhaps that in itself does not constitute a conclusive argument against the radical reform the bishop advocates. As he points out, some steps in the designated direction have been taken.

In this and every State there is a statute forbidding the marriage of persons related to each other in certain specified degrees of affinity or consanguinity. This prohibition has been inspired by sanitary as well as by religious considerations, and its removal has never been advocated on the ground that it is promotive of immorality among those whom it affects. Were the prohibition to be materially widened, it is likely that some of those against whom it was directed would overlook the legal barrier, but others would not, and the net result would be a smaller or larger gain.
But it is evident that nothing could be accomplished in the manner indicated so long as the marriage relation is one of the subjects whose regulation belongs exclusively to the several States or until such time as uniform legislation with regard to it could be by common consent achieved.

Paris Radium Porters

According to the Paris correspondent of the Daily News a new profession has been opened to the women of that city. It is that of "radium porter." A radium porter is a person, usually a woman, who is put in charge of that extremely evanescent and valuable metal, radium, which is of late coming to be so much used in hospitals. It came to the notice of the correspondent that there are already several radium porters in Paris hospitals. One of them the correspondent sought out recently.
"What are the distinguishing characteristics of your work?" she was asked. "Well, it isn't exactly like being a hotel porter," she answered, smiling. "You don't have to have hands like clamps and a neck like an oak tree. When I work at my trade the material I have charge of is hardly larger than a grain of rice. You see, radium is used as a good deal in surgery nowadays. I don't know why, and I don't bother myself about it. But it's an extremely valuable substance, anyway. A breath of it, a mere nothing—and there's $1000 or $5000 gone!"
"In order to carry it about in the hospitals and clinics in extremely careful, watchful, honest person is needed. The surgeons themselves have other things to think about. The nurses are too easily distracted. The profession of radium porter has therefore been invented. I'm one of the first of them, so far as I know."
"Are there any in America? I'm sure I don't know about that, but I think there would have to be, wherever delicate operations requiring the use of this substance are attempted."
MORE OR LESS.
Some say the comet's tail is long.
While others say it's short;
Must be about as long as that
Big fish we never caught!
—Boston Herald.

Bank Notes Are Still Popular

That money, particularly paper money, may assume to transmit infectious disease is obvious. It differs little physically from ordinary paper or rags, and it acts as a carrier of germs like any similar paper and popular commodity. It gathers bacteria from the hands of one man, these are faithfully carried to its next owner. This has been demonstrated experimentally by Dr. Park, of our local health board.
Mr. Hilditch, of New Haven, has shown that bank notes are covered with germs of all sorts. Those examined by him carried fever, if any, disease germs, and these were not virulent. Manifestly this innocuousness was a mere accident. If the Hilditch bills had a chance to collect virulent micro-organisms, they would have carried these about just as they did the harmless ones. In other words, if harmless bacteria can live for several days or weeks upon circulating bank notes, it is highly probable that disease-producing forms can do so; and as it is certain that such dangerous forms (the tubercle bacillus, the diphtheria organism, and many others) are constantly brought into contact with currency, it is a fair assumption that they are transmitted by it, and that a part of the annual death roll due to the infectious disease may be credited to the thing, the love of which is the root of all evil.

Men Behind These Two Play Excellent Ball, Hit at Opportune Times and Win Double-Header

Well, we are almost there. Today the percentage column shows that the Oakland ball team is at the point beyond the Braves while the Seals are six points behind the Athletics. I just saw the Oakes on the back of the stadium and the Athletics are leading by a margin of 10 runs. I am sure the decisive vote will be cast in the afternoon session for the Oakes and many of the fans will vote the Seals.

Did you see the program of the show in the morning with eight other Oakes right behind him. In the p.m. contest it was Mr. Slim Nelson that carried off the most applause with the others running him close second. I saw the Athletics in the afternoon and they were the hitless wonder a saving at that ball.

RICH PIONEER MIDWAY SELLS FOR $3,000,000

Seventh Producer of Homestake to Be Added Before Long.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—It is a very promising indication that in the face of the threatened overproduction, capital is beginning to pour into California for investment in petroleum properties, and that home capital is not at all alarmed over the prospect.

There are persistent reports that the Royal Dutch Trading Company of Amsterdam is buying up oil lands in this State under the guise of British capital.

Among the other securities Brookshire was in good demand at $1.25, Monte Cristo at $3.40, S. W. & B. at $50, and P. O. at $1.25.

Another excellent well has been brought in by the Kern Trading and Oil Company on section 7.

The homestake producer of the Homestake Company will be added to the list before the end of next week.

An enormous showing of oil was made today (the 12th) at the P. O. oil company on section 14.
